

Full Script for ASL Video: Next Stage Access Measures 2020

Next Stage Theatre Festival is Toronto Fringe's curated winter festival showcasing 11 of the city's best independent theatre companies.

Next Stage runs January 8-19th, 2020 at Factory Theatre and offers ASL interpreted performances for the following shows:

Literally Titanium, January 15th at 8:15pm, disabled artist Ophira Calof plays her body as a character getting its moment in the spotlight.

Consumption Patterns is a darkly funny monologue play with Deaf Interpretation offered January 16th, 7 pm.

Moro and Jasp: Save the Date is a heartwarming romp with two hilarious clowns, January 18th, 2pm.

For full details on these shows and other access measures consult the show pages on our website.

Tickets can be purchased now on our website at <https://fringetoronto.com/next-stage/shows> or in person at our box office during the Festival. ASL fluent volunteers on site wherever possible before ASL interpreted shows.

We are committed to extending a high level of customer service. Visit <https://fringetoronto.com/accessibility/customer-service> for more information.