Tickets On Sale Now for the Next Stage Theatre Festival

For Immediate Release:

November 27, 2017, TORONTO, ON – Tickets are on sale for the Toronto Fringe’s winter performance festival. The Next Stage Theatre Festival runs January 3-14, 2018 out of the three performance venues at the Factory Theatre (125 Bathurst Street).

A special Early Bird Discount of 15% off is available to those who book their single tickets to shows in the festival before December 4, 2017, using the promo code “EARLY BIRD”. Mainspace and Studio shows are $15 each, and Antechamber shows are $10. Tickets can be purchased online through each individual show webpage, by phone at 416-966-1062, or in person at the venue starting January 3.

Passes are also available for purchase for those who are looking for the complete festival experience. Purchase a 4-Play Pass for $48 (savings of up to $12) or an 8-Play Pass for $90 (savings of up to $30) and experience the wide variety of genres presented as part of this year’s show line-up.

Tickets are also available now for Martin Dockery’s *Delirium, a one-night-only performance of the hit one-man-show as a special fundraiser for the Toronto Fringe. On January 13, 2018, join Next Stage performers, patrons, and donors at 9:00pm in the Steam Whistle Beer Tent located in the Factory Theatre Courtyard for free beer tastings and treats. At 10:30pm, ticketholders will be treated to Dockery’s NNNNN show, which sold out to great acclaim during the 2017 Toronto Fringe Festival. Tickets for Delirium cannot be purchased on a pass, and we encourage patrons to “Give What You Can” by choosing a ticket price between $15 and $95 as a donation to the Toronto Fringe.
